I am submitting this comment AGAINST the proposed rule change, in particular the attempt to eliminate Options trading in IRA accounts and even allowing information on Options trading to be furnished to investors.

I have learned the basics of options trading including risks and how to minimize risks. As a result, I have been able to self-manage my account in a knowledgeable manner. For example, I have been able to invest in good, high quality stocks and also gain income with covered puts / calls. Just as importantly, this flexibility has helped my understanding of capital, business investments, and controlling investment risk.

If this rule is finalized, useful time for learning how to manage investments will be replaced by additional wasteful time for learning a new set of rules that do not add any value for my retirement.
